Wheeling Hall of Fame Board

During the early planning stages for the Wheeling Civic Center, one of the members of the committee suggested that a “Hall of Fame” should be included in the Center to give recognition to former residents and present residents who had attained considerable distinction in some specific field and thus brought honor to their home city.

The City Council studied the matter and solicited suggestions for guidelines and procedures.

On February 3, 1977, council passed an ordinance (No.6179) creating the Hall of Fame Board. In July 1977 the Mayor, with the approval of Council, appointed 18 citizens to serve on the Board with designated terms of two, four, and six years. The Board also includes a representative of City Council and the chairman of the Civic Center Board as an ex-officio member.

The membership of the Board has changed as new appointments have been made by the Mayor and Council from time to time.

The Board set up specific procedures for the selection of nominees and proceeded to select the first 18 people to be named to the Hall of Fame. Those considered had to have achieved distinction in one of six categories and had to have lived in Wheeling at least 10 years.

Three persons were named in each of the six categories. These 18 people were inducted into the Hall of Fame at a formal ceremony and dinner on April 13, 1980. The Hall of Fame Board later selected 12 additional people to be honored and these people were inducted on May 23, 1982. Ten more were inducted on May 20, 1984. Eight were officially added at ceremonies on October 26, 1986. Six inductees were enshrined on October 21, 1990. Five more were ushered into this distinguished company on November 29, 1992. Six people were inducted on November 20, 1994. Seven people were inducted into the Hall of Fame at ceremonies on September 20, 1998, eight on November 26, 2000, and five more on December 1, 2002. Six honorees were inducted in 2004, five in 2006, six in 2008, seven in 2011, five in 2013 and nine in 2015. The current group of nine honorees brings the total number of people enshrined in the Wheeling Hall of Fame to 132.

The preamble from the Ordinance establishing the Hall of Fame Board reads as follows:

“A Hall of Fame to honor Wheeling citizens and former citizens for outstanding accomplishments in all walks of life shall be established in the halls of the Wheeling Civic Center. While outstanding public services were rendered by our founding fathers and early citizens, these worthy deeds are recognized by historical publications and appropriately honored in other halls, museums, and memorials. Therefore, honorees in the Wheeling Hall of Fame shall be selected on the basis of accomplishments after 1863 (later amended to 1836). For purposes of selection and designation, the human endeavors of the honorees shall be divided into the following six major categories:

| (2) Business and Industry* | (5) Public Service |
| (3) Education and Religion | (6) Philanthropy |

 became Business, Industry and Professions in 1996.*

The first officers of the Board were: Forrest H. Kirkpatrick, Chairman; James J. Haranzo, Vice Chairman; and Sister Anne Regina O’Leary, Secretary-Treasurer.

The late Charles L. Ihlenfeld succeeded Dr. Kirkpatrick as chairman and was, in turn succeeded by Harry L. Buch. Dr. Kirkpatrick was subsequently elected to succeed Buch, who was then selected as successor to Sister Anne Regina O’Leary as Secretary-Treasurer. With the retirement from the board of Dr. Kirkpatrick, James Haranzo was elected chairman in 1990 and Michael Pockl was named Secretary-Treasurer, to be succeeded in that position by James Seibert.

In January 1996, James Seibert was elected chairman. James Haranzo was elected Secretary-Treasurer. In February 1999, S. J. “Dick” Dlesk was elected chairman, Patricia Pockl was elected Secretary-Treasurer. Jim Squibb was the next elected chairman in 2009.

Robert DeFrancis currently serves as chairman, Jeanne Finstein is vice chairman and Philip Stahl is the secretary-treasurer.

William Burrus – Business, Industry and Professions

William “Bill” Burrus was born in Wheeling on December 13, 1936. He was a member of the Lincoln High School class of 1954, the school’s last graduating class and the last segregated class in the city, before attending West Virginia State College. From 1954-57 he served in the 101st Airborne Division and 4th Armored Tank Division in the United States Army. Upon his discharge in 1958, Burrus joined the United States Postal Service as a distribution clerk in Cleveland, Ohio.

Active in the 1970 postal strike, Burrus quickly rose to prominence in labor union matters, serving on a 1971 committee that merged five labor unions in the American Postal Workers Union (APWU). That same year he was elected director of Education and Research of the Ohio State APWU. The following year he gained national attention in joining the APWU’s Human Relations Committee. In 1980, he became national executive vice president of the APWU, the tenth largest union in the country with members in every city in America. He served in that capacity for 21 years, during which time the APWU was recognized as one of the most successful of all American labor unions at earning concessions for its membership.

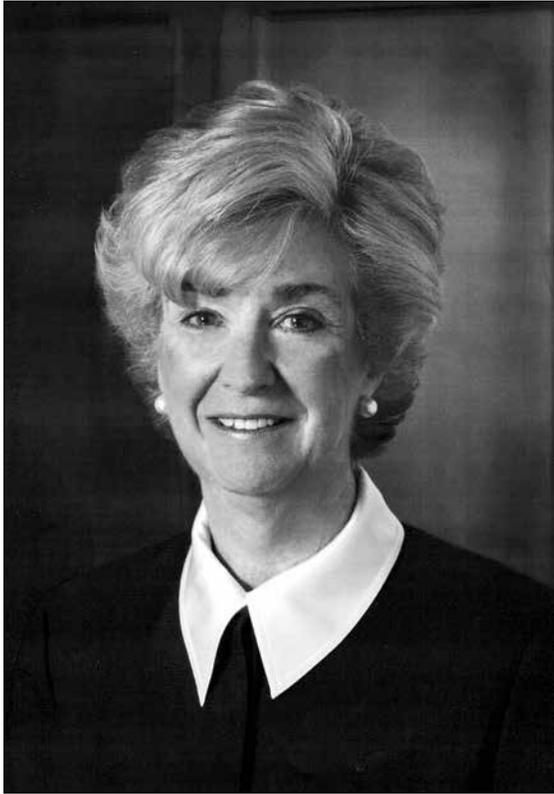

In 2001, Burrus was elected president of the APWU, receiving 53 per cent of votes cast in a three-way contest, thereby becoming the first African American to be elected president of any national union by direct balloting of its membership. His first months in the position were difficult, including testifying before a U.S. Senate committee to demand better working conditions for postal workers after the anthrax attacks that had killed several workers in the months following the September 11, 2001, attacks. Burrus later would advocate for workers’ rights amidst the Bush administration’s commission on postal service reform. In 2008, he led the APWU to become one of the very first labor unions to endorse the candidacy of Barack Obama for president. He retired in 2010 after a successful 53-year career. He remained active in retirement, authoring an autobiography and a book on black history.

Among his accomplishments, Burrus led union negotiations of four collective bargaining agreements between the APWU and the USPS and was directly involved with every national negotiation between 1980 and 2006. Among his proudest achievements was leading a successful fight to reject a proposed 1978 collective bargaining agreement that would have capped COLA increases – in doing so Burrus protected the economic well-being of generations of postal workers. He likewise helped to create the Postal Employees Relief Fund, which provides financial aid to postal workers who are victims of natural disasters. His tireless work enhanced the rights, safety, and benefit of all APWU employees, who continue today to benefit from his leadership.

Not limited to the APWU, Burrus likewise served on the executive committee of the Union Network International, was a vice president of the Black Labor Union, vice president of the A. Philip Randolph Association, and a vice president of the AFL-CIO, among many other organizations. His achievements were recognized from the Ohio statehouse to Capitol Hill. In 1989, he was awarded the Distinguished Service Award from the Martin Luther King, Jr. Center, and for consecutive years was recognized by Ebony magazine as one of the 100 Most Influential Black Americans.

William Burrus died on May 19, 2018, survived by his wife Ethelda, four children, and more than 200,000 APWU members who continue to benefit from his half century of advocacy and service on their behalf.

Sue Seibert Farnsworth – Public Service

Sue Farnsworth is the daughter of the late George H. “Bud” Seibert, Jr. and Janice Boone Seibert. Born in Wheeling and educated in its public schools, she graduated from West Virginia University and its College of Law. Following in the footsteps of both parents and joined by her brother, she had a general practice of law in her hometown with an emphasis in the areas of wills and estates.

She holds memberships in the American Bar Association, the West Virginia State Bar Association, Ohio County Bar Association, American Bar Foundation, and the West Virginia Bar Foundation. She is a former member of the West Virginia Board of Law Examiners and the Estate Planning Council of the Upper Ohio Valley. Her law career has been recognized with the WVU College of Law’s Justitia Officium Award and the State Bar’s Kaufmann Award for her pro bono work. In 2017, the West Virginia Bar Association honored her with its Award of Merit.

Her public service to Wheeling and to West Virginia includes the following: Wheeling Park Commission, 1992 to present (vice president, 2009 to present), Oglebay Foundation Board of Directors, 1996 to present (secretary-treasurer, 1996 to 2017), Community Foundation for the Ohio Valley Board, 1997 to 2018 (president, 2013-14), Women’s Giving Circle charter member, Wheeling Symphony Board of Directors (president, 1993-94, life director), and former member of the Wheeling Hall of Fame Board.

Sue Farnsworth is committed to the improvement and enhancement of education in the Mountain State. She held a seat on the WV Board of Regents from 1977-83, and was its first lay chair in 1980-81. At WVU, she sat on the Foundation Board of Directors from 1995-2010 and chaired the Foundation from 1999-2001. From 1986-94, she was a member of the Board of Advisors and its chair in 1989-90. In 1999, her alma mater awarded her its highest honor, the Order of Vandalia Distinguished Service Award; four years earlier WVU named her a Most Loyal Mountaineer. At home, she held a seat on The Linsly School Board of Trustees, and since 2014, enjoys emeritus status. From 1984-90, she served on the Commission on Institutions of Higher Education of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools. She was its chair in 1988-90 and earned its honorary award in 1991.

She has earned kudos from the WV Bar for her pro bono work and often worked “behind the scenes” to advance the work of other educators. She was especially helpful to President Clyde D. Campbell in establishing West Liberty University’s Foundation. In 2011, the YWCA of Wheeling honored her at its annual Tribute to Women ceremony.

In this life of public service, Sue finds the time to serve on the vestry of Lawrencefield Parish Church and on the Sandscrest Episcopal Conference and Retreat Center Board.

She was married to the late Carlyle Farnsworth for 44 years, and they have one son, Thomas, a daughter-in-law, CJ, and a grandson, Holden. In June 2018, she married John W. Kepner of Wheeling.

She joins a distinguished list of Wheeling natives in the Public Service category of the Wheeling Hall of Fame, including her father George Seibert, Jr. They are the Hall’s first father-daughter honorees.

Sue Farnsworth has spent her adult life working for the improvement of city and state, both as an attorney and a civic-minded Wheelingite. Her life stands as a testament of the good that one woman can accomplish.

Harriette Shull “Hydie” Friend – Public Service

The renaissance currently underway downtown has its roots in Wheeling 2000, the late Harry Hamm’s adaptation of Pittsburgh’s highly successful Strategy 21 revitalization plan. Hydie Friend was at the vanguard of the plan’s early efforts to use historic preservation as an economic development tool. Hired by the City of Wheeling Department of Development in 1983, Hydie secured funding and oversaw the renovation of the historic Centre Market Houses, which spurred private investment in the surrounding commercial properties and residences. As deputy director of development, she was responsible for the planning, zoning, and subdivision review for the City of Wheeling. Hydie also was responsible for the development of Wheeling’s bike trails and the Veterans Memorial Amphitheater. In addition, she co-founded the Wheeling Waterfront Wednesdays concert series.

In 2002, Hydie became executive director of the Wheeling National Heritage Area Corporation, serving in that role until 2011. During her tenure, Hydie guided early planning and implemented initiatives that led to the City of Wheeling’s official designation as a National Heritage Area by the United States Congress. Hydie also guided and managed the funding, design, construction, and operation of Wheeling Heritage Port. She oversaw the design and installation of interpretive signage on the Heritage Trail and in Wheeling’s neighborhoods. Hydie was involved in creating three interpretive exhibits, “Made in Wheeling” displayed at the Wheeling Artisan Center, “Crossroads of America” for the Intermodal Transportation Center, and “Born of the Civil War” at West Virginia Independence Hall.

Capping her career, Hydie led the effort to evaluate the purchase, renovation, operation, and management of the historic Capitol Theatre. In addition to other funding sources, she wrote the “Save America’s Treasures” grant proposal that secured federal funds for the theater’s façade renovation. She has assisted in obtaining federal and state tax credits for major historic rehabilitation projects such as the Wheeling Stamping Building and the Stone Center. She has prepared nominations to the National Register of Historic Places for numerous local sites.

Hydie Friend’s leadership in every aspect of historic preservation and economic development continues to benefit Wheeling, contributing significantly to the community’s quality of life and positioning Wheeling for successful renewal. She has adroitly bridged the past as a pathway to the future, always with a smile and a positive “we can do this!” approach. In addition, Hydie has served in leadership roles in various non-profit organizations including the United Way of the Upper Ohio Valley; the American Red Cross; Elmhurst, the House of Friendship; the Wheeling Landscape Commission; the Centre Market Commission; the Wheeling-Ohio County Convention and Visitors Bureau; Friends of Wheeling; Preservation Alliance of West Virginia; the West Virginia Planning Association; and the Everglades Society for Historic Preservation. She was also a member of the American Institute of Certified Planners, American Planning Association. In recognition of her contributions to the development of Oglebay Park, she was recently presented with the G. Randolph Worls Spirit of Oglebay award.

Hydie holds a bachelor of arts degree from Wilson College and a master’s of Urban and Regional Planning from the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs, University of Pittsburgh. She completed the Executive Leadership Program at the John F. Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University. Hydie is a daughter of the late Sherman C. Shull and Harriette Hitchman and step-daughter of Brooks E. Wigginton. She is married to retired Judge L. Edward Friend II.

Sister Joanne Gonter, VHM – Education and Religion

Sister Joanne Gonter was born in 1934 and grew up in Wheeling. After graduating from Mount de Chantal Visitation Academy in 1952, she entered the Sisters of the Visitation there. In 1959 she graduated from Wheeling College (now Wheeling Jesuit University) and in 1968 received a master of science degree from Marshall University. She taught at Mount de Chantal for 49 years, served two terms as superior of the community and since 1975 has been the Mount's director of alumnae relations.

Academy enrollment declined, and in 2008 the eight remaining sisters voted to close its doors. With wisdom and grace Sister Joanne oversaw the process of informing students, parents, staff and alumnae and of determining the disposition of the buildings, property, and 160 years of accumulated treasures. In 2010 the sisters at the Mount, including Sister Joanne, moved to Georgetown Visitation Monastery in Washington, D.C., where she serves as a member of the board of directors and assistant superior of the community. The sisters have maintained their link to Wheeling and to the Mount de Chantal Alumnae Association. As a student at Saint Michael's grade school in Wheeling, where she took piano lessons from one of the Divine Providence Sisters at the school, she began a lifelong career as an accompanist for school productions, and now she is organist for daily Masses at Georgetown.

In August 1955 Sister Joanne enrolled in the first class at newly-founded Wheeling College as a chemistry major. Beginning her teaching career in the fall of 1959, classes she taught over the years included chemistry, logic, philosophy, physics and religious studies.

Changes in the Catholic Church after the Second Vatican Council led to significant changes for women religious. Direct involvement in activities of the Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston for Sister Joanne included membership in the Sisters Council and the seminary board of the Diocese of Wheeling-

Charleston. Civic memberships included the Martin Luther King, Jr. Committee and the board of the City of Wheeling Hall of Fame.

In 1975 Sister Joanne and other sisters worked with lay associates to form a board of directors for Mount de Chantal. As mentioned above, although this group was very supportive, circumstances in Wheeling and elsewhere led to the closing of the school, which had been established in 1848, before the Diocese of Wheeling-Charleston (1850) and the state of West Virginia (1863).

In her distinguished career of teaching and service, Sister Joanne has received numerous awards. Named a West Virginia History Hero in 2006, she has received three awards from Wheeling Jesuit University: Distinguished Alumna in 1989, Rev. Clifford Lewis, SJ, Award in 1995, and the Ignatian Medal at the annual Gaudiosa celebration in 2016.

Sister Joanne Gonter continues to lead a life of service to God and others and through her many contributions and relationships has made Wheeling and the world a better place to live.

Everett Lee – Music and Fine Arts

Born in Wheeling on August 31, 1916, Everett Astor Lee was the first-born son of Everett Denver Lee and Mamie May Blue Lee, who lived on Eoff Street in East Wheeling. He is believed to be the first African American to conduct professional grand opera in this country.

After graduating from high school, Lee attended the Cleveland Institute of Music, studying violin. He put himself through school and worked at a hotel, where he met Arthur Rodzinski, conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra. He began attending the Cleveland Orchestra concerts every Saturday and told a reporter in 1948, “My early conducting aspirations were nurtured by him....Rodzinski helped me in many ways; he would go over scores with me and give me pointers.”

After graduating from the Cleveland Institute of Music, Lee enlisted in the military. He was sent to Tuskegee to train to be a pilot, but an injury ended his military career. He returned to Cleveland and got a call from a legendary New York producer on Broadway, Billy Rose, who asked him to come to New York and join his orchestra for a production of “Carmen Jones.” In the fall of 1943, the conductor for a performance was snowed in, and concertmaster Everett was handed the baton and told to conduct.

In June of 1943 Lee met Sylvia Olden, a voice coach in the classical music world. They married in early 1944 and had two children, Everett II and Eve. Following their divorce, Lee remarried in 1979. He and Christin had a son, Erik.

In 1944, Lee worked with Leonard Bernstein on an engagement of “On the Town,” closing out the show as its conductor. He continued working with Bernstein and went on to become a student at Julliard School of Music as well as at Tanglewood, an extension of Julliard. Following Tanglewood, Lee played first violin for the New York Symphony under Bernstein. Even with prominent connections, opportunities for a black conductor were limited, so in 1947, Lee formed the Cosmopolitan Symphony Society. With limited conducting opportunities, he and his wife both received Fulbright scholarships and left the United States in 1952, studying music in Rome for a year.

In 1953, Lee became the first African American to conduct a major symphony orchestra in the South when asked to conduct the Louisville Orchestra in Kentucky. Two years later, he conducted at the New York City Opera Company and is believed to be the first African American to conduct a major opera in the United States. The family moved to Germany in 1956 where Lee became the conductor of the Münchener Opernbühne, a traveling opera company. In 1962, he was appointed conductor of Norrköping Symphony Orchestra in Sweden, holding that position for 13 years. While Norrköping remained his permanent residence, Lee conducted the Symphony of the New World in New York, the Bogotá Philharmonic in Columbia, and Opera North in Philadelphia.

Lee has been the guest conductor at the symphony orchestras of many cities, including Atlanta, Baltimore, Barcelona, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, Louisville, Nashville, St. Louis, and Hamburg, Germany; the philharmonics of Berlin, Buenos Aires, Lithuania, Madrid, New York, Paris, and Stockholm; the Opera Ebony, and operas in Bordeaux, Munich, and New York City, and Royal Swedish Operas; and the Boston Pops, among others.

Throughout his career, Lee conducted more than 1,000 orchestral, choral, and operatic works. He conducted his last orchestra on January 13, 2005, for the Louisville Orchestra. The City of Wheeling proclaimed August 31, 2017, Lee’s 101st birthday, as “Everett Lee Day.” Lee currently resides in Sweden and turned 102 in August of last year.

Dr. Donald Mercer – Business, Industry and Professions

The son of the late Dr. and Mrs. J. Loran Mercer, Donald W. Mercer grew up in Warwood and graduated from Warwood High School in 1956. He received a bachelor of science degree in chemistry from Wheeling College in 1960 as a member of the second graduating class. An outstanding tennis and basketball player, he was elected to the Wheeling Jesuit University Sports Hall of Fame in 1994. The son of a college band director (who was also a Hall of Fame inductee), he played the clarinet and helped establish the WJU symphonic and pep bands. He was named in 2015 to the WJU Hall of Honor and received a WJU Distinguished Alumni Award in 2002. Don married Beth Ann Wolfe in 1961, and they have three sons.

Don was awarded a scholarship to the University of Pittsburgh's Graduate School of Public Health and completed a master of science degree and a Ph.D. degree in biochemistry in 1963 and 1968, respectively. He became the chief biochemist at the pathology department of Montefiore Hospital in Pittsburgh and also held the title of assistant clinical professor at the Pathology Department in the University of Pittsburgh's Medical School. As such, he taught residents and medical technicians, performed research, evaluated new commercial clinical tests, and consulted with physicians and interns. Later, Mercer was promoted to associate clinical professor at University of Pittsburgh's Medical School Pathology Department and worked with the Pittsburgh Cancer Institute as a co-director in research on tumor markers. He also spent five years as the chief biochemist in the Pathology Department of Allegheny General Hospital.

One of Dr. Mercer's research projects included the study of circulating isoenzymes and tumor-associated antigens to monitor tissue activity. At the urging of Dr. Muray A. Varat, Montefiore's chief cardiologist, he began lab experiments to develop a reliable blood test to detect heart attacks. Previous heart tests such as an EKG were considered slow and often inaccurate. In 1975, Mercer introduced a rapid blood enzyme test for the early and precise identification of myocardial infarctions. The "CK-MB test" (cardiac isoenzyme of creatine kinase test) resulted in nearly 100% accuracy and has become the global standard as a fast, accurate, and simple way to detect heart attacks. The test is also used to monitor the degree of heart damage and to detect secondary, smaller heart attacks. Use of the test has significantly shortened a patient's stay in the coronary care unit, thereby reducing hospital and patient costs.

Dr. Mercer published his research results in the Journal of Clinical Chemistry in 1974. News of his pioneering test spread quickly. Mercer was granted a patent in 1977, and Roche Diagnostics marketed the test. During the next few years, he toured the country speaking about his findings and received considerable media coverage and accolades from fellow scientists and medical professionals. He was a regular reviewer for "Clinical Chemistry" and has written numerous articles, book chapters, and abstracts. The 2006 book "Landmark Papers in Clinical Chemistry," published by Elsevier, cites Mercer's work as one of the top 40 developments of the 20th Century. A WJU colleague stated, "My medical practice was significantly influenced by the availability of the CK-MB test. Before this test was available, other unreliable tests were performed. Don's discovery saved lives and decreased the cost of medical care." Dr. Mercer's CK-MB test to this date (four decades later) is still considered the benchmark for detecting heart attacks worldwide.

John Joseph “J.J.” Owens – Music and Fine Arts

John Joseph Owens was born in Wheeling on May 15, 1887, the son of Thomas and Anna Owens, both natives of Ireland. He attended parochial grade school and graduated from Cathedral High School, now known as Central Catholic High School. He lived his early years at 92-14th Street, across from the Scottish Rite Cathedral. After high school, he went on to the Maryland Institute College of Art in Baltimore for further training, completing a four-year course in painting and drawing.

Owens then returned to Wheeling and for a time was staff artist for what was then known as the Wheeling Register newspaper. He also opened his artist’s studio and grew his reputation for portrait painting both in Wheeling and in Baltimore.

At the outbreak of World War I, he joined the U.S. Army and served as a member of the medical service corps, performing the role of surgical illustrator. Overseas, he was stationed at the base hospital in Paris. His work of making anatomical drawings earned him the rank of sergeant, first class. Owens served his country with honor, and after Armistice Day, he remained in Paris for six months to study at the Académie de la Grande Chaumier under renowned artists and sculptors.

After he returned from Europe, he opened his professional studio in the Hawley Building and joined his two unmarried sisters, Rose and Margaret, at 106 Jefferson Avenue, where they made their home.

In 1926, he returned to Europe for more study. During this time, he accepted many art commissions, working in Spain, Italy, and France. He was written up in foreign publications and earned an international reputation.

On his return to Wheeling, Owens was active in the community in many ways including social clubs such as Rotary, the Blue Pencil Club, Wheeling’s Little Theatre and more. He also was an active member of St. Michael Parish.

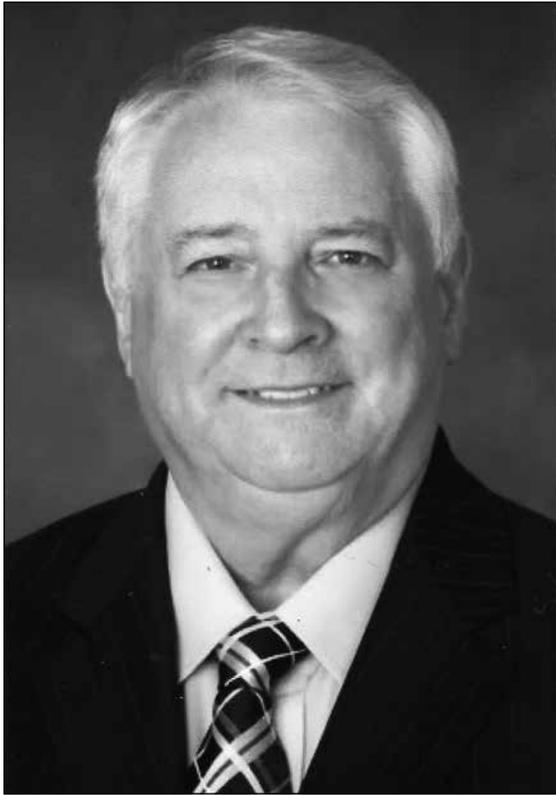

He held art exhibitions at his studio and taught art to the public. He was founder of the Art Club of Wheeling in 1928 and served as treasurer. He taught and worked with Oglebay, specifically with the Art Colonies for Young People. He was a close friend of Wheeling Hall of Fame photographer George J. Kossuth.

Owens brought fame to the city of Wheeling by painting portraits of many influential leaders, both nationally and abroad. In addition to local clientele, he painted portraits for individuals and institutions in Baltimore; Washington, D.C.; Charleston; and Emmitsburg, Maryland.

At the time of his sudden death from appendicitis at age 44, Owens was working on an oil painting of the dean of Harvard University, which was completed by his brother Vincent, who was an artist and cartoonist at the Wheeling newspaper.

Owens is well-known for his paintings of all the presidents of the prestigious Fort Henry Club of Wheeling, created during his lifetime, along with many other Wheeling residents and landscapes. A collection of his paintings is housed at the Ohio County Public Library. He is buried at Mt. Calvary Cemetery.

According to the 1984 Spring/Summer edition of the Upper Ohio Valley Historical Review: “John Owens was known for his portraits of Wheeling’s most renowned dignitaries, yet he was himself one of Wheeling’s most famous people; he died at the peak of his career. During his lifetime, he painted all the leading citizens of Wheeling and many ordinary people. With his artist’s brush, John Owens created a ‘Hall of Fame’ of Wheeling in the era in which he lived.”

Ronald G. Peyton – Sports and Athletics

In the profession of physical therapy and sports medicine, few can match the accomplishments and recognition of this Wheeling native. Born November 24, 1942, to Robert and Nadine Spindler Peyton, he graduated from Triadelphia High School in 1960. He later earned post-graduate master's and doctor's degrees in physical therapy from Duke University.

Peyton founded the Dogwood Institute in Alpharetta, Georgia, in 1970 and served as president and chief executive officer until 2010. He also was in private practice from 1970-96 as president and chief executive officer of the Rehabilitation Service of Atlanta and was a director of The Sports Medicine Institute from 1970-1993. In academia, he was an adjunct professor in physical therapy at Duke University starting in 1980 and at Georgia State University from 1985-1990. He served as a clinical instructor for 250-plus students from 18 different universities from 1975-1999.

Peyton has been recognized with numerous honors and citations including the Catherine Worthingham Fellowship Award, the most prestigious and highest award a physical therapist can receive. In recognition of outstanding contributions to advancement of the physical therapy profession, he was presented the award in 2011 by the president of the American Physical Therapy Association before 4,000 professionals in Washington, D.C. In 1997, he was inducted into the West Virginia University College of Physical Activity and Sports Sciences Hall of Fame.

He has been involved with the United States Olympics program as physical therapist in charge of the 1968 Olympic Training Program at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colorado. And, in 1996, he served as director of sports medicine services for the Olympic Village for the Olympic games in Atlanta, Georgia, while serving on the Atlanta Committee for the Games. He also gave a symposium at the 1976 Montreal Olympics.

From 1975-1977, he served as the only physical therapist on the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports and served as physical therapist to President Jimmy Carter in 1976. He was a founder of the Sports Physical Therapy Section of the American Physical Therapy Association and was the first winner of the award for outstanding sports physical therapists named in his honor: The Ronald G. Peyton Lecture Award.

He is a frequent speaker, author of countless articles, consultant at 75 sports medicine centers worldwide, educator, and patented inventor, and has appeared regionally and nationally on television and radio programs (CNN, NBC) to discuss physical therapy and sports-related issues. He has authored feature stories in more than 35 professional journals, magazines, and newspapers describing physical therapy today. He invented, and patented in 2005, a device for treatment of headaches in clinical practice used by many professional teams as well as the general public.

Peyton has presented more than 200 motivational speeches, mostly on sports medicine topics, and has served as a keynote speaker at the University of Florida (twice), Georgia State, and the Mayo Clinic, and was a graduation speaker at Duke University. He received the Barbara C. White Award twice from the University of Florida for outstanding accomplishments in physical therapy. In 2015, the Duke Medical School faculty started a yearly series of innovative lectures named in his honor – the Ronald G. Peyton Transformative Innovative Series.

Outside his profession, he developed a school of woodworking in 2003 and, in 2008, was awarded the distinction of "Master Woodworker" by the Georgia Woodworker Guild. One of his proudest accomplishments was the building and entering of his creation of a "Gentlemen's Toolchest" in competition in Atlanta which won first place in the Master Woodworker's Class, Best of Show, and People's Choice Awards.

Peyton, who has two children, Heather and Heath, resides in Frisco, Texas.

Albert F. Schenk, III and Kathleen Hogan Schenk - Philanthropy

Albert F. Schenk, III and Kathleen Hogan Schenk were both born in the City of Wheeling and lived there continuously until 1950, when they moved to Elm Knoll located along Big Wheeling Creek in Marshall County, West Virginia.

Albert was a nephew of Hall of Fame member Otto Schenk and continued the Schenk family tradition of giving generously to scores of primarily Wheeling-based charitable organizations. Most of his gifts were made anonymously, but he did allow his family name to be used for the construction of Schenk Lake as a memorial for his parents. Other gifts to support the Wheeling Park Commission and enhance Schenk Lake continued throughout his lifetime.

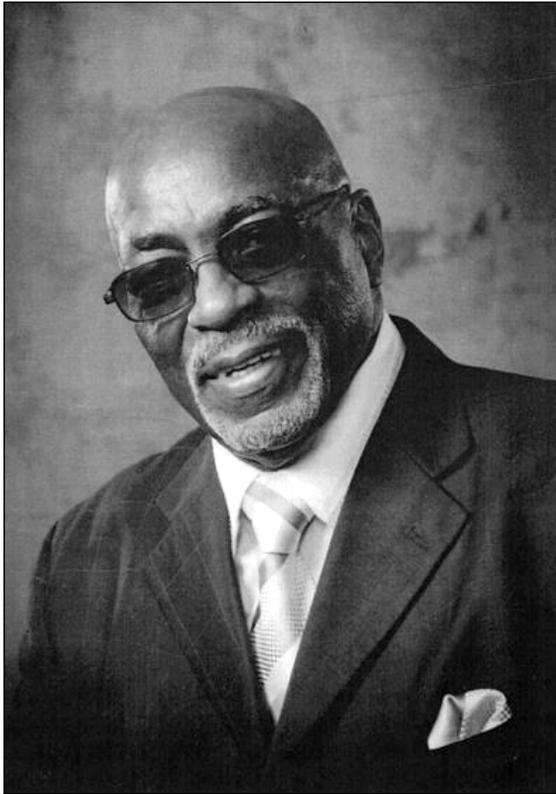

Kathleen Hogan Schenk began a lifetime of volunteer work with the Red Cross during World War II and in later years with the Girl Scouts, King's Daughters, Ohio Valley Medical Center, as a member of the Charter Guild of Wheeling Jesuit University, and serving on the board of directors of Wheeling Hospital, the Welty Home, Good Shepherd Nursing Home, and Mount de Chantel Visitation Academy. During her lifetime, she was a significant supporter of Mount de Chantel Visitation Academy, Wheeling Jesuit University, and Wheeling Hospital, again without public recognition.

The Schenk Charitable Trust was created upon the death of Albert F. Schenk, III in 1995 and substantially increased following the death of Kathleen Hogan Schenk in 2009. It is managed by the family of Albert and Kathleen Schenk. The Charitable Trust supports the annual Fourth of July Fireworks Celebration at Oglebay Park in honor of Albert Schenk, whose love of fireworks was well known. According to public filings, the Schenk Charitable Trust has more than $8 million in assets and annually distributes hundreds of thousands of dollars for scholarships, capital improvements, and program assistance to educational and social service agencies throughout the Wheeling area, greatly improving the lives of citizens of Wheeling.

Among the more significant recent grants in the area of health care are those to the Ohio Valley Medical Center Behavioral Health Center, Liza's Place, Reynolds Memorial Hospital, Wheeling Health Right, and Lazarus House. In the area of education are grants to Augusta Levy Learning Center, Bethany College, Wheeling Jesuit University, both Marshall County and Ohio County Schools, Wheeling Central Catholic High School, as well as Corpus Christi and St. Vincent de Paul elementary schools, and King's Daughters Child Care. In the area of social services are grants to Crittenton Services, Catholic Charities, Laughlin Chapel, Russell Nesbitt, Youth Services Systems, and the United Way. And in the area of quality of life are grants to Grow Ohio Valley, Oglebay Foundation, Oglebay Institute, Wheeling Symphony, and the City of Wheeling for the East Wheeling Chambers field.

No other private foundation in the Wheeling area comes close to the breadth and depth of grants made annually by the Schenk Charitable Trust.

Rev. Willie F. Stinson - Education and Religion

Rev. Willie F. Stinson was a man on a mission. Born in 1936 in Enterprise, Alabama, he grew up in Steubenville, Ohio, where he began laying the foundation for a lifetime of service. Excelling in sports as a student, he continued his football career with a stint playing for the Wheeling Ironmen semi-pro team in 1964 and 1965.

Continuing his education, Stinson graduated from the Oregon Institute of Technology and the Culinary Institute of America. In the U.S. Army, he served as an executive chef and chef instructor. After discharge, he worked as an executive chef for Waldorf Astoria Hotels and Resorts and as an instructor and regional director for the Culinary Institute of America. He later established the chef's apprentice program at the Community College of Allegheny County in Pittsburgh, where he served until he left to enter Christian ministry, answering God's call to change from feeding people's bodies to feeding their souls.

Rev. Stinson was licensed to preach in June 1986 and ordained as a minister of the gospel in June 1987. He earned a bachelor's degree in theology at Trinity College of the Bible, graduating in May 1990. Early in his ministry, he served churches in Washington, Pittsburgh, and Marianna, Pennsylvania. Moving to Wheeling in 1992, he and his wife, Evangelist Ruth Stinson, founded Agape Baptist Church, located at the corner of 14th and Jacob streets in East Wheeling. "Agape" is the Greek New Testament Bible word for God-like love. Stinson served as pastor there from February 1992 until his death in November 2018.

In his ministry at Agape, Rev. Stinson worked with young people at the church's youth center, counseled criminally challenged youth, and served as a mentor to both single and married adults and to other pastors. Under his leadership, the church completely renovated its building, established essential ministries, and reached out in mission to the neighborhood, community, and world.

Beyond the church walls, Rev. Stinson was a co-founder of the Black Ministerial Alliance in Wheeling in 1997, organized to foster cooperation among African-American clergy and their congregations. He also was instrumental in promoting changes that led the group to re-form in 2012 as the Upper Ohio Valley Ministerial Alliance, now open to all Christian clergy no matter what their race. Rev. Stinson played a key role in the process that led the City Council in 2014 to designate Stone Boulevard in Wheeling as Martin Luther King, Jr. Way, honoring the late civil rights hero.

In 2015, at the annual West Virginia Civil Rights Day ceremony in Charleston, Gov. Earl Ray Tomblin and the West Virginia Human Rights Commission honored Rev. Stinson for his work in helping to fulfill its stated mission of advancing civil rights through advocacy.

During his years as a Wheeling pastor, Rev. Stinson was an example to follow, an inspiration to all who knew him, a leader among people of faith, and a force for hope and progress in East Wheeling and the community at large. At his funeral on November 17, 2018, in his beloved Agape Baptist Church in Wheeling, a packed sanctuary, including black and white, rich and poor, prominent and unknown, a great variety of religious leaders and followers, elected officials, family, and friends from all over Wheeling, the Upper Ohio Valley and beyond, celebrated Rev. Willie Stinson's remarkable life with testimony after testimony to the influence he had on their individual lives and on the church and city he served.

Perhaps the late Rev. Stinson's own words sum up his life best: "All I have done and been through has made me truly a man on a mission for God, the youth, and my community through Agape Baptist Church – "The House that Faith Built."

Susan D. Vail - Sports and Athletics

Susan D. Vail was born in Wheeling May 11, 1941, the daughter of William F. and Shirley Nally Vail. As a youngster, her parents included Sue in their family activities, and it was apparent at an early age that she possessed the natural athletic ability to excel in golf, tennis, and swimming.

Sue continued to compete in both tennis and golf during her years at Triadelphia High School and later during her undergraduate years at West Virginia University. However, it was not until she graduated from West Virginia University in 1963 and Sue began teaching at the former Union High School in Marshall County that she elevated her golf game to a higher level of competition.

Sue's competitive career occurred during an era when women golfers did not have the opportunity to compete as professionals; however, Sue did compete nationally in United States Golf Association Women's amateur and senior play. She won the West Virginia Women's Amateur Championship eight times, in 1976, 1984, 1985, 1988, 1989, 1992, 1993, and 1998. Sue also won the West Virginia Senior Amateur seven times from 1991-97, for a total of 15 individual women's golf championships.

In recognition of her outstanding play throughout her career, Sue has been selected a total of 18 times to represent the Women's West Virginia Golf Association in the prestigious Virginias-Carolinas Team Matches where she was elected by the players as the team captain of the Virginias team in this classic team series.

Sue is a past member of the U.S. Girls' Championship Committee of the United States Golf Association and has served as secretary-treasurer of the Women's WV Golf Association.

The Upper Ohio Valley Dapper Dan Club honored Sue for her outstanding achievements, both on and off the golf course, and she was inducted into the Ohio Valley Legends of Golf. She was also recently named to the West Virginia Golf Hall of Fame.

Sue has a bachelor of science degree in English from West Virginia University and a master's of community education from Ball State University. Following graduation from WVU, she began a career in education where she taught for 37 years as a classroom teacher in both public schools as well as Department of Defense schools in Yokohama, Japan.

Upon retirement from the Ohio County Schools system, Sue was an adjunct faculty professor at Wheeling Jesuit University and an English teacher at Mount de Chantal Visitation Academy. It was during this period in her life when she decided to give back to women's golf, which had given so much to her, by starting the first women's golf team at Wheeling Jesuit University. Since that inaugural year of play, Sue has served as the head coach, a position she has held for the past 16 years. Under Coach Vail, the Cardinals women's golf team has won the WV Intercollegiate Athletic Conference women's golf crown twice and the Mountain East Conference crown four of the past seven years.

In 2016 Coach Vail was elected to the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) Division II Women's Golf Committee, representing the eastern region, where she was appointed by her peers to chair Division II women's golf among its national 302 member schools. Among her leadership responsibilities is to direct the eastern region NCAA Division II Women's National Collegiate Championship.

In addition to her accomplishments in the fairway Sue served as the charter chair of the Centre Market Commission, a member of the Wheeling Planning Commission, and as a director of the Wheeling Area Training Center for the Handicapped and the Children's Home of Wheeling.
